Stock Indices Nearing Major Target! Projected Rally into March/April 2010 Nearly Complete...

October 2010 = Cycle Low... But Watch Late-July 2010!!!

In February 2009, Eric Hadik explained why Stock Indices were nearing multi-year downside targets (published in 2007, when he forecast a 35--50% decline) and accelerating the time for a major bottom. Weekly cycles projected this low for Feb. 23--March 6, 2009. The bottom arrived on March 6, 2009.

Weeks later, he explained why the DJIA should rally to 10,459 (a surge of over 60%) by year-end. A couple months later, he revealed the projected timing for the ultimate cycle top. In June 2009, Eric forecast an overall advance into March 2010. This was based on 3-5 year, 1-2 year and 6-12 month cycles, all of which focused on March - May 2010 as a longer-term (secondary) cycle peak.

As time passed, the specifics for a culminating peak - and onset of a new bear market - began to emerge. One of the contributing factors was - and is - the 14-15 Week Cycle that pinpointed the March 6, 2009 bottom (charts of this cycle can be viewed at www.insidetrack.com). An intervening high was expected in mid-September 2009 and the following observation was made:

9/01/09 INSIIDE Track: "...the 14-week cycle would then project another top near year-end and a subsequent top in late-March/early-April 2010."

A few weeks later, Eric fine-tuned this analysis and published an update to the 14-15 Week Cycle chart. It explained why an initial peak was likely in January 2010 and why April 12--23, 2010 was the ultimate focus for this cycle. This was consistent with the broader, longer-term cycle peak - in March--May 2010.

That same issue provided expectations for an intervening bottom in November 2009 which was projected to yield a culminating surge into March/April 2010. As explained for much of the past 9 months:

09/30/09 INSIIDE Track: "This cycle next comes into play during the week of November 9-13, 2009 and is expected to create an intermediate bottom... and would still look for another advance into March 2010 (possibly, extending into April 2010)."

10/30/09 INSIIDE Track: "...correction into mid-November. A final advance - into March/April 2010 - is expected to follow...The week of November 9-13, 2009 remains the most likely for an intermediate bottom..."

12/04/09 INSIIDE Track: "Stock Indices have reached the primary upside objective for 2009 but a final high is still likely to wait until March/April 2010."

April 2010 Cycle Peak!

Stock Indices continue to validate cycles in March/April 2010, which sets the stage for another bear market to follow. As stated a couple months ago:

1/02/10 Weekly Re-Lay - "...a 14-15 week high-low-high-high-low-low-high-high-high Cycle Sequence. The next phase comes into play during the weeks of April 5--16, 2010. In the case of the Nasdaq 100 - which has led many of the major moves - a rally into April 5--9th would also complete a 72-week advance from its November 2008 bottom. (The Nasdaq 100 set its major low in November 2008 and held this bottom when pulling back into March 2009.) The 71-72 week cycle has governed the movement of the Stock Indices since 1998/1999....

...A peak in March - May 2010 would perpetuate a 29-31 month High (March 2000) - Low (Oct. 2002) - High/Low (March/April 2005) - High (Oct. 2007) - High (March - May 2010) Cycle Sequence that would subsequently project a decline into Oct. 2012." Copyright 1/02/10 - ITTC

Decline into 2012? ...to What Price?? INSIIDE Track & Weekly Re-Lay Will Elaborate...

Eric has described many cycles, price patterns, wave projections and other forms of analysis that argue for a new decline into 2012. One simple one was reiterated in late-February and previously created declines in 1930--1932, 1940--1942, 1980--1982 & 2000--2002 (with major bottoms at the end of each drop):

2/27/10 Weekly Re-Lay - "...the current time frame is similar to early-2000. At that time, the 71--73 week cycle projected a DJIA peak in mid-January. The peak came on schedule...cycles projected a spike high in late-March, which was fulfilled by the SP & NQ... the Indices could mimic that action...and see some spike highs in late-March/early-April."

Is this déjà vu??? In July--December 2007, Eric repeatedly warned of a 1-2 year decline of up to 50% in Stock Indices. Some readers believed him while others were entranced by the 'song of the siren', telling them that eternal prosperity was assured... and that 20+% annual returns were the norm. In which camp were you? Those heeding INSIIDE Track analysis subsequently stated things like:

"I've been your subscriber for a long time now... And I'm sure glad...Otherwise, I would have lost my entire savings for retirement!"

Karen S. - 1/24/10

"It's about a year and a half...I'm impressed... you called the 2007 top of the Dow well in advance... Congratulations!"

Beniamino S. - 1/06/09

"...your timing is remarkable...when you say the Dow could lose up to 50% of its value..."

Donald S. - 9/15/08

"... excellent forecasting provided by IT during the recent period of worldwide market turbulence!"

Paul D. - 11/07/08

"I've saved lots of money on my 401K since you called the top last year."

William C. - 9/30/08

So, what now? Eric has begun to provide specifics on what to expect, leading into April. And, as this period unfolds, he will provide readers with much more. The April 2010 INSIIDE Track will also be updating his analysis on the impending: 'Date of Infamy'. So, What Now? That is your choice...
